

During the Battle of the Bulge, Milton Greenfield was a First Lieutenant, Tank Platoon Commander, in the Third Army Sixth Armour Division, commonly known as “Patton’s Tank Corps.” During the battle, he pulled two soldiers out of a burning tank. He also came to the rescue of an injured soldier who had fallen off his tank. Through the efforts of my staff, we were able to secure the medals Lt. Greenfield earned more than 60 years ago. On Tuesday, I had the great honor of presenting him with nine medals, including the Distinguished Service Medal and the Purple Heart.
